War Summary of The Latest Events

The German counter-stroke on the eastern front fails. To aid the sorely pressed Austrians south of the Pripet marshes the Germans have been concentrating a large force at Kovel. It is believed that in all 120,000 Germans have been brought up to reinforce that part of the Teuton front between Kolki, on the Styr, and the Stokhod, which, like the Styr, flows northward through Western Volhynia into the Pripet. The German attack here is based on the idea that the Czar's troops dare not continue their advance upon Kovel so long as an unbeaten German army remains along the Stokhod and Styr Rivers upon their right flank.

As the German reinforcements have come up during the past week they have been sent into action, and Berlin claims that the result has been to hold the Slavs on the line of the Styr and the Stokhod. Petrograd does not admit this claim. In an official despatch Wednesday night it was stated that on the morning of Wednesday the Germans attacked on the Stokhod River north of Vorontchine in massed formation. The engagement became a hand-to-hand struggle, in which, says the report, "the Germans unable to sustain our heavy pressure took flight, leaving in our hands wounded and prisoners not yet counted."

Earlier reports tell of fierce fighting in this same region of the Upper Stokhod, to the northwest of Kisselin, a town about 22 miles due east of Vladimir-Volynski, on Monday and Tuesday. During Tuesday evening the Germans made repeated attacks under cover of heavy gusts of fire, but were put to flight, losing a number of prisoners and nine machine guns. Farther to the northeast, near Kolki, on the Styr, fighting of the most fierce sort continues. Here the Germans claim to have taken a thousand Russians, while Petrograd states that the village of Cruziatyn has changed hands several times. On Tuesday afternoon the Russians entered it and captured 11 officers, 400 men and six machine guns, but were compelled by gusts of German artillery fire to evacuate it again.

If on the Styr and the Stokhod the Slav advance is slow, there is a very different story to tell of the operations in the extreme south. There the Russians have crossed the Sereth River, and are rapidly overrunning Bukowina in pursuit of the fleeing Austrians, who are now entirely out of touch with the Austrian army of Galicia, and must retire into Hungary through the passes of the Carpathians to escape capture.

Some idea of the magnitude of the disaster that has overtaken the Austrian armies in Volhynia, Galicia and Bukowina may be gained from the official Petrograd report that between June 3rd and June 15th General Brusiloff's troops captured 3,350 officers and 169,134 men, 198 guns, 550 machine guns and enormous quantities of supplies. In the week that has passed since the 15th the Russians must have taken at least twenty-five thousand additional prisoners. Austria has lost in killed, wounded and prisoners on this front not less than 300,000 men in three weeks, and Germany at least 50,000. And still what a Berlin paper calls the "human tidal wave" of Slavs rolls on.

North of the Pripet marshes, where the Germans hold the line alone, they are attacking with vigor at various points, but without success. They penetrated the Russian trenches near Smorgen, to the southeast of Vilna, on Tuesday evening, but were driven out after an artillery bombardment. There seems no reason to doubt the ability of the Russians to hold their lines from the Baltic to the Pripet while continuing their attack south of the marshes.

The operations in the east are on so great a scale, and with results so far-reaching, that the Verdun campaign and the other activities in the west seem relatively unimportant. The Paris midnight report tells of German assaults on the French positions west and south of Fort Vaux after an entire day's violent bombardment. The enemy's attack was twice beaten off by artillery and machine gun fire, and the Germans suffered great losses. On the west side of the Meuse an attack on the recently won French positions on the southern slopes of Dead Man's Hill was also beaten off. The German guns around Verdun are still powerful and deadly, but the infantry is no longer able to reap the fruit of efficient artillery preparation.

German guns around Verdun are still powerful and deadly, but the infantry is no longer able to reap the fruit of efficient artillery preparation.

The French bombarding squadrons of aeroplanes are attaining a remarkable degree of efficiency. It is announced that on Tuesday night no less than 210 shells were dropped on the station of Arncliffe, and 276 shells on the German military establishments and the railway station at Metz. The result of such a rain of projectiles from a great height must have been very serious.

The Grand Duke Nicholas, reporting on conditions on the Asiatic front, states that "near Dearbekir our scouts ambushed and shot down a strong enemy detachment which was on the way to relieve outposts." Hitherto the phrase used in the report has been "in the direction of Diarbekir." The Russians are evidently closing in on this important centre of communications. On the Mosul and Bagdad fronts there has been fighting which resulted in advantage to the Russians.

Italian reports indicate a continued advance of the Alpini in the Posina region. The Austrian attacks in the Trentino become spasmodic and lack strength. It is stated, the Austrians have lost 150,000 men in this offensive their gain of a few miles of desolate mountains will be poor compensation.

There have been few incidents that are worthy of report of late on the British front. One, which shows the accuracy of the British artillery and the danger at all times in the transportation of ammunition to the front, occurred on Tuesday evening near La Bassée. Five of the German ammunition lorries came under the fire of the British guns. One of them was hit and all exploded.

They like its style; its good-looking lines; that smart, individual air of exclusiveness.

They like its power and pep. It shoots up a hill like a streak of greased lightning. It gives, but seldom gets the dust.

Put five in (there's lots of room), give her a little gas and away she flies—free from vibration, rattle, stress or strain.

What do you suppose appeals to the more elderly people? Just the solid comfort. This car, unlike most of the smaller and popular-priced makes, has none of that stiffness or rigidity about it. Deep, soft, divan upholstery and shock-absorbing cantilever springs take all the stiffness out and put all the comfort in.

Large tires (4-inch) also add materially to the riding qualities of the car. Also, and just as important, they help keep upkeep at a minimum.

Another thing to remember. This car comes complete. No expensive starter or speedometer or anything extra to buy.

It's the little conveniences that seem to have the broadest appeal. The electric control-buttons on the steering-column, convenient foot-pedals and shifting levers bring everything within anyone's reach—even the price.

It is but $850—complete.

Austrians Have Not Withdrawn.

ROME, June 20.—The Austrians are maintaining their original plan in pressing their offensive in the Trentino, and have not withdrawn troops from that front because of the Russian offensive in the east, it is declared in Sunday night's official War Office statement. Belief is expressed that such a withdrawal will become more difficult because of the counter-offensive which the Italians are now maintaining. Further Austrian attacks have been repulsed, and in the Frenzala and Sugana sectors the Italians have made further progress.

PRISONERS WERE BOYS.

Germans of Class of 1917 Captured
Before Verdun.

PARIS, June 20.—An official statement issued Sunday says: "We have identified by prisoners taken two fresh divisions on our Verdun front.
The proportion of men belonging to the 1916 class brought up as reinforcements by the Germans has increased considerably. We are able to ascertain the presence of young soldiers belonging to the 1917 class."

A despatch from Amsterdam states that an official order appears in the German papers calling all the soldiers of the 1917 class to the colors.

Fresh attempts by the Germans against the French positions northeast and north-west of Verdun met with no success, says the French War Office, and the Germans suffered heavy casualties in their attacks—
delivered against Le Mort Homme and Thiaumont sectors.

Again there has been considerable activity in the Argonne forest and in the Vosges mountains, where the French in the former sector used their long-range artillery effectively against German positions, and in the latter sector put down a surprise infantry attack south-west of Cars-pach.

The French forces made an attack on the German positions north of Hill 321, west of the Thiaumont farm Saturday morning, capturing some trench elements and taking some 30 prisoners.

No infantry attack was made by the Germans in the course of the day,
but their artillery continued its violent bombardment of the French positions on Hill 304, and the second line in the Chattancourt sector, on the west bank of the Meuse, and of the sector south of Fort Vaux on the east bank.

Considerable activity is reported from the St. Mihiel region. There was fighting with hand grenades in the forest of Apremont, south-east of St. Mihiel, and French artillery bombarded German camps at Montsee, to the east of St. Mihiel, and caused a fire in the railway station at Vigneulles-Hattonchattel, to the north-east of the same town.

U.S. TROOPS CALLED.

National Guard Will Be Hurried to Mexican Border.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Virtually the entire mobile strength of the National Guard of all states and the District of Columbia, was ordered mustered into the federal service
Sunday night by President Wilson.
About 100,000 men are expected to respond to the call, although Brig-
Gen. Alfred Mills estimates that the maximum militia forces available
would be 145,000 men.

They will mobilize immediately for such service on the Mexican border
as may be assigned to them.

Secretary of War Baker Sunday
issued the following statement:

"In view of the disturbed conditions on the Mexican border, and in order to assure complete protection for all Americans, the President has called out substantially all the state militia, and will send them to the border, wherever and as fully as Gen.
Funston determines them to be needed for the purpose stated.

"If all are not needed an effort will be made to relieve those on duty
there from time to time so as to dis-

TEUTONS ARE CUT UP

Austrian Force Is Divided Into Three Sections.

Brussiloff's Magnificent Drive Has Shattered the Defensive in Bukowina and Enemy is Operating in Isolated Armies—Capture of Czernowitz is an Important Victory.

LONDON, June 20.—The Russian offensive has been renewed after a temporary pause, with increased fury.
An incessant rain of shells is falling even thicker than in the earlier days of the offensive, on the Austrian trenches, and the Russian ammunition supply appears to be inexhaust-ible. Heavy guns have been brought up, the despatches from the front
say, and huge Russian reinforcements have appeared near Torchin,
west of Lursk, in the Stokhed-Styr district, and near Horodenka, between the Dneister and the Pruth.

The breaches made by the Russians on the south-western front,
spreading fan-shape from 30 to 40 miles in the rear of the Austrian line, have now effectively separated
the three main Austrian army groups operating between the Pripet and Bukowina. The continued retreat of the more advanced portions of the Austrian forces is occasioned, therefore, more from strategic reasons than because of actual pressure applied by the Russians.

The primary object of General
Brussiloff's campaign is not the re-
taking of lost territory, and, although it is quite conceivable that Lemberg may be caught in the encircling movement developing from the flank attacks of Lutsk and Czernowitz, the chief aim of the Russian advance is obviously to destroy—or,
at least, cripple—the Austrian army.

The tremendous number of prisoners taken by the Russians up to Saturday roughly estimated at 165,- 000, with additional losses in killed or wounded of 150,000, attests to the success of the Russians in accomplishing this aim.

After much hard fighting on the River Pruth, where the Austrians fought desperately with a view to gaining time for the evacuation of Czernowitz by their army and the removal of military stores from the city, General Lechnitzky has finally entered the capital of Bukowina.
The capture is an important one, as it entails the command of several important railway lines. The city had been untenable for several days because of the tremendous Russian bombardment, which compelled the flight of the civil inhabitants and evacuation of the place by the Austrian forces. It is expected that further details of the capture will show that both sides suffered sanguinary losses.

The recapture of Czernowitz by the Russians comes at a dramatic moment, it happening only a few days after the Austrians, with imposing ceremony, had unveiled on the city hall a double-headed Austrian eagle
such as the Russians had removed during the occupation of the city last year.

Russian headquarters announce the capture of Czernowitz in the usual laconic terms. It gives no description of the desperate fighting
known to have occurred for the cross-

FOUGHT LIKE DEMONS.

Canadian Prisoners Cheered by Belgians at Courtrai.

LONDON, June 20.—Soldiers returning to Courtrai from the front on Wednesday said the Canadians fought like demons until they recovered the trenches lost the previous week, writes a correspondent of the Amsterdam Telegraaf, who adds:

"Germans losses were heavy during the British bombardment preliminary to the recovery of the ground.
The correspondent saw people from Courtrai, who described scenes there after the German defeat. Train after train and a long succession of motor ambulances brought the wounded
back in Rue de Lille, and on the market places cars stood dripping with blood. Inhabitants of Courtrai rejoiced at the German setback, as on the previous Saturday they were angrily forbidden to cheer when 200 Canadian prisoners were marched in through the Porte de Menin.

"After being given food in the big schoolroom the prisoners were taken to Ghent. Cheered occasionally when Belgian women caught sight of the men, not even the brutal punishment of the Huns could prevent them from cheering. On Monday 57 more Canadians came through, but neither party had any officers and no general was seen."

known to have occurred for the crossings of the Pruth River after the Austrians blew up the bridges, but adds the interesting fact that the Austrians are being pursued into the Carpathians, which is the only alternative to being driven into Rou-mania, where they would be interned.

The Russian official account makes the interesting revelation that German reinforcements have already been brought from the French front
to the assistance of the hard-pressed Austrian:

"Yesterday, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, General Lechnitzky's troops captured by assault the bridgehead at Czernowitz, on the left bank of the Pruth. After desperate fighting for the passage of the river, where the enemy had destroyed the bridges, we occupied Czernowitz.

"Our troops are pursuing the enemy, who is retreating in the direction of the Carpathian passes. In the course of the capture of the bridgehead, we took over 1,000 prisoners and also seized guns in Czernowitz."

TURKS ROUTED.

Petrograd Reports an Advance in the Direction of Mosul.

LONDON, June 20.—In a Petrograd official advance in the direction of Mosul, north of Bagdad, is recorded. A party of 27 Russian scouts attacked a Turk detachment numbering 300. The fight lasted for two hours, and finally the enemy was dislodged from his position and forced to take flight.

The Constantinople official claims that a British attempt to land a force on the northern bank of the Euphrates between Korna and Nas-selbe was prevented by the Turks, who drove back the British after six hours of fighting. Behind them the British left 180 dead, it is alleged.
The Russian force which invaded Mesopotamia from Persia in the section east of Mosul has been driven back into Persia and north of the town of Bane, five miles inside the Persian border, according to the same report.

The following official communication with regard to the operations in Mesopotamia was issued Sunday evening:

"General Lake reports that on the night of June 16-17 the enemy unsuccessfully undertook to bombard
our saps on the front of Sannayyat.

"The description in the Turkish communication of June 17 of an attempted English landing on the north bank of the Euphrates was either imaginary or a distorted version of the successful punitive expedition mentioned in the British communication of June 16."

Projecting Your Personality.

Can any man's life be held to be incomplete if it is continued in the life of a friend? Was Arthur Hallam's life incomplete when Tennyson prolonged it forever by "In Memoriam" or the life of Socrates when Plato continued
it in his immortal dialogues? Confucius said wisely, "Have no friends not equal to yourself." By that he must have meant, "Make your friends equal to yourself by giving them freely of your best." Thus you make sure of a
yourself, as a manufacturer intrusts
the secrets of his manipulations to his younger partners.—Christian Herald.

THRILLS ARE BEING PROVIDED AT HOME

The other day the British Empire was thrilled by the account of the great naval battle in the Skaggerack, a battle as glorious in its conduct and results as Trafalgar. This battle, in which the odds were heavily against the British, displayed all the old Nelson spirit from admiral down to Cabin boy.

Time and again His Majesty's ships bucked the German line, the swift battle cruisers gave and took broadsides, the destroyers made their berserker charges, none recked how he perished provided he smote first. Admiral Beatty, with the high courage of the British navy, a courage which is second nature, placed his squadron between the German Grand Fleet and its base and held the enemy to it, at a terrible toll on both sides, until Admiral Jellicoe and his Dreadnoughts were in sight and sent the Germans scuttling back to cover.

Admiral Hood went down with his ship, as many other gallant officers and men did with theirs. Five thousand of the bravest men in England lie at the bottom of the sea—for this is the price of Admiralty. But the German navy is bottled up once more. The Kiel Canal is crowded again. Britannia has shown that she rules the waves and intends to keep on ruling them. The only mistake seems to have been the meticulous caution of the British Admiralty which let the Germans put their story on the wire first—it will take the truth some time to overtake the German misrepresentations.

The great battle had its lesson for Canada. What if the German navy had broken through? Where would Canada have been then with no navy of her own and the Niobe tied up at Halifax and being used as a cook house for landlubbers? However, that is an old story. What really counts is the thrill of pride Canada felt at the great British victory in the North Sea. The German fleet may never come out again—indeed its coming out at all is in the nature of a last card and is a sign that the war is in sight of its finish, this demonstration being a sacrifice to German public opinion which suspects that the German army has shot its bolt on land. But meanwhile it has provided the British Empire with a thrill—a thrill of pride and satisfaction that Englishmen make no account of it if death is only swallowed up in victory for a great cause.

Right on its heels comes another thrill. Our brave Canadians baptized with fire at St. Julien, Festubert and Langemarck, are carrying this country's name to glory again at Ypres. The casualty lists are going to be long. There will be many sad hearts in Canada. But they will not sorrow as those without hope, these fathers, mothers, wives, maidens, children who have given their dearest to the call of honor and duty.

Such are the thrills which a war three thousand miles distant provides for us on land and sea. Meanwhile what kind of thrills are being provided at home? Well, we have the Kyte inquiry, which concerns a lot of high-binders whose chief object seems to have been to soak the British Empire coming and going. We have Colonel John Wesley Allison, Sir Sam's friend and super-patriot, who being told to "scratch gravel for himself" did it to such good effect that Wall Street buy-business also so that the goats could not be distinguished from the sheep.

While our heroes were dying in Flanders and elsewhere the home Government supplied still another thrill by the disclosure in regard to the "defective" cartridges, which were good enough to be bought by Colonel Allison at $20 and sold at $25 per thousand to the British Admiralty. On top of that came another thrill in the shape of General Alderson's letter, which drew attention to a suppressed report on the Ross rifle which the British War Office complained was brittle at the breach.

One way and another these thrills of disgust with which the Borden Government is so plentifully providing the country synchronize, as Sir Thomas White would put it, with the noblest performances of our soldiers at the front. It was while our boys were writing Canada's name imperishably on the scroll of fame at St. Julien, Festubert and Langemarck that our first war scandals were being aired and two Conservative members of Parliament were being drummed out of office for getting sticky fingers. At that time it was paper shoes, binoculars, foundered horses and such. These things loomed large at the time, but in the light of later lootings they look like thirty cents.

HUMAN VISION.

Farsight, Nearsight and Method in Testing the Eyes.

Farsight or nearsight—which is better? We must remember that he who has unusually acute vision for objects at a great distance can rarely thread a needle or read small print without glasses, while the person whose near vision is so acute as to serve him almost like a microscope sees distant objects as a blurred mass.

The Medical Record comments on "how little is known as to the extent of vision of the farsighted and still less of the nearsighted." We have two eyes in order that our vision may be stereoscopic, and it is thus that we are able to judge of the relative distances of objects, and it brings a greater field before the retina at one time, but the sight of two eyes is no keener than that of one. "Indeed, if there be required a greater intensity in a given field it is a natural tendency to obscure the vision of one eye." That is why most women close one eye when threading a fine needle and why men in firing a rifle at a target shut one eye.

The Medical Record doubts the value of uniform tests for eyesight, urging that tests be made in relation to definite occupations. For example, a very nearsighted man would be totally incapacitated from work in the field of transportation, yet admirably fitted for such work as engraving. A very farsighted man, on the other hand, who would be utterly useless as a proof-reader or a gem setter, might be a prize as a field surveyor, a forest ranger or even a locomotive engineer.

"Many misfits," says the Medical Record, "can be prevented by determining the kind of occupation the individual will be best fitted for. In the last analysis it should be the aim to educate the vision one has to greater powers by calling to aid all sources of orientation—to educate and train visual perception so that one may perceive more of the objects within the field of one's vision."

QUICK THINKING WON RUSS. GIRL A MEDAL

Violent Young Officer and Whole Detachment Took Sleeping Potion in Wine and Then Were Bound

Among a party of Letts who succeeded in escaping from a village in Courland, occupied by the Germans, is a girl of seventeen who has been rewarded for a great deed of bravery with the St. George's Cross. A small German detachment marched on to the farm owned by this girl's father. Sentries were left outside to keep watch on a hill quite close, while the rest entered the house and prepared to have a good time. The young German lieutenant turned to the girl, with the order to get wine at any cost, as their supply had run short. She was told that unless she fulfilled the order the house would be set on fire and she herself subjected to violence.

On Came Drowsiness

There were two barrels of heavy old liqueur, made of spirit and berries, in the cellar, and a bright idea struck the girl. Before giving them the cordial she dropped into it some powder, made of bluebells, which brings on heavy drowsiness. The first barrel was soon emptied, and the demand came for more. The second barrel contained a double portion of the powder, and the Germans soon began to roll on to the floor, one after another.

Seeing her enemies helpless round the barrel, she filled a bowl of liqueur, took it out to the sentries, who stood freezing in the cold, and gave it to them to drink, incidentally mentioning that she was fulfilling the officer's orders. The bowl was soon emptied. She then returned to the house and carefully disarmed the soldiers, who, sunk in heavy slumber, lay about in different attitudes, and hid their weapons deep in the cellar. Meantime her father was fastening with ropes the limbs of the insensible Germans. Having accomplished her task with the prisoners, the girl proceeded to find her way out to the Russian positions. Following forest paths and making her way through swamps, she finally reached a Siberian outpost.

Twenty-one Bagged

"I have disarmed and tied up twenty German soldiers and one officer; hasten, and take them prisoners," were the excited words which the girl addressed to the head officer of the Siberian Rifles. The soldiers were amazed at the audacity of the young Lett, and could hardly believe her story. However, she persuaded them to follow her, and when they reached the farm they found the Germans still fast locked in their drunken sleep. Several pails of ice-cold water flung in the faces of the sleepers soon roused them to the grim realities of their situations.

The brave girl was brought to the presence of the Russian commanding general, who shook hands with her, thanked her for her heroic deed, and promised to make a report on it to the higher military authorities. This was done, and as a reward for her services she received the much-coveted decoration which signifies valor in the Russian army.

John Wesley Allison, Sir Sam's friend and super-patriot, who being told to "scratch gravel for himself" did it to such good effect that Wall Street buccaneers would pay $25,000 each for an introduction to him so as to be able to get in on the gravel the Colonel was scratching. The Colonel seems to have struck "pay dirt" from the very first. He made so much money that he could divide a commission of a million dollars with two other profiteers and then forget the details. Colonel Allison didn't bother about such chicken feed. It came so easy that he could afford to give $105,000 to his typewriter for ten years work, who says she hardly remembers which bank account she put it in as she has several bank accounts. Even in those war profit days $10,000 a year is good pay for typewriters and is calculated to make other members of the profession jealous. However, what's $105,000 to Colonel J. Wesley Allison? Everybody with a proposition had to "see Allison," and Allison's commission, otherwise his toll-gate, was, roughly speaking, ten per cent. All those who refused to "see Allison" or did business with Morgan or who preferred to act as independent competitors are characterized by the Minister of Militia as "rings." Allison was the one just man. According to Sir Sam he could have saved the British War Office a hundred million dollars if he hadn't been halted in his wild career.

Another thrill was furnished by the revelations in regard to the Bertram Shell Committee. Messrs. Carvell and Pugsley estimated in the House of Commons that the manufacturing members of the Shell Committee had overfed themselves eighty million dollars—this estimate being partly based on Lord Curzon's remark that the British War Office got one dollar value for every three dollars spent in Canada. It did better than that. It had also a "paper profit" of thirty-one million dollars which, so it boasted, it had a legal right to divide but which it did not divide after Messrs. Thomas and Hitchens made a few pertinent remarks about it. Indeed it will be handed back to the British War Office, whereby the Shell Committee acquires great merit for a somewhat belated act of virtue.

Another thrill is provided by the letter of Mr. D. A. Thomas, which was allowed to go in as evidence before the Duff-Meredith Commission. In this letter Mr. Thomas points out to the Shell Committee that Mr. Lloyd George considers that the Shell Committee prices are too high and intimates that no further orders will be forthcoming until prices take a tumble. Mr. Thomas further suggested that the prices would yield to a little healthy competition, but the Shell Committee had to have "the infusion of steel manufactures" reorganized out of it before it began to see things in that light. The old Shell Committee was mighty set in its ways and did not leave off trying to pull the British lion's tail out by the roots until its clutch was broken. Moreover it took some time to break its clutch—mostly because Premier Borden was on Mr. Thomas' side one day and on the Shell Committee's side the next. Finally Premier Borden had to be led right up to it and then Mr. Thomas got action.

Incidentally Mr. Thomas suggested that the Government might use the Transcona shops to go into the munition industry itself and thus bring down the prices, but the Government backed up on that proposition. It was running the war on the lines of the patronage list and it refused to do anything that would put a crimp in the campaign fund. Later on it was obliged to put a small tax on the war profiteers, but it did it more in sorrow than in anger and incidentally took the edge off it by taxing legitimate business more of the objects within the field of one's vision."

Some Nautical Facts.

A knot is 6,080 feet long. The distance from New York to Liverpool is 3,064 nautical miles by the northern track and 3,129 by the southern track. The former course is taken by vessels bound for New York, the latter by vessels bound for Liverpool. From Liverpool to New York the distances are respectively 3,039 and 3,109 miles.

In estimating records the points taken on either side are Sandy Hook and Daunt's rock, Queenstown harbor. The first light sighted on the British coast is the Bull, Cow and Calf, Ireland, and on the American coast either Nantucket or Fire Island.

The Kauri Gum Diggings.

Kauri gum, found underground in New Zealand and dug to the amount of a million and a half pounds yearly, is used for furniture polishes and varnishes, and most of it is exported to America. The industry of digging it is unlike any other in the world. A kauri forest is a beautiful sight, but kauri gum country is treeless, barren and desolate, even and swampy very often, with singularly heavy, cloggy soil, out of which the gum formed on kauri pines of ancient and long vanished forests is dug or speared. There are whole stretches of this treeless kauri country with nothing but a little scrub and fern growing on it.

Official Ignorance.

One of the best of the many stories of English official ignorance of the colonies is recalled by P. A. Silburn in "The Governance of Empire." Lord Palmerston was forming a new ministry and in a preliminary council was arranging its composition. He had filled up all the portfolios with the exception of the colonial office. First one name and then another was suggested and thrown aside. At last he said to Sir Arthur Helps: "I suppose I must take the thing myself. Come upstairs with me and show me where these places are on the maps."

Where Gannets Swarm.

One of the most remarkable sights in the world is Bird Island, in South Africa, for the reason that during some months of the year it is literally covered with gannets. Not a foot of ground is to be seen anywhere. Day after day thousands of gannets strut around, and they are so close to each other that the whole island seems actually alive. Those who have seen this sight say that it is one which can never be forgotten.

Harboring Pain.

A Japanese proverb says, "When you take poison don't lick the plate." How much happier a place the world would be if that advice were taken! The principal reason the higher animals suffer less than man is that they do not think about their sufferings.

Unlike Germans, Respected Red Cross on Lady Paget's Hospital

There was a large party at King's Cross to welcome Lady Paget and fifty-four other members of the Serbian Relief Fund Hospital staff at Uskub on their return to London. A well-known member of Lady Paget's party said: "We have travelled back to England via Roumania, Russia, Sweden and Norway. On October 22 the Bulgarians entered Uskub. Their advance was so rapid that there was no possibility of getting the patients safely out of the hospital. Lady Paget pluckily decided to stay behind to look after them. The line of battle went right through the hospital buildings, but the Bulgarians respected the Red Cross flag."

"There were 800 patients, about half of them being Serbs, and the other half Bulgars. The Bulgarians, I believe, did what they could to help. They told us they were anxious to stand well in English eyes. The refugee population, kept alive from the relief fund stores, numbered many thousands. Lady Paget organized daily relief for about 4,000 people. "King Ferdinand, and both the young princes came to Uskub before we were permitted to leave. None of them, however, came to the hospital. After leaving Uskub we were detained in Sofia for a month. Lady Paget was the guest of the Queen of Belgium. I was allowed to visit the British prisoners—of whom there were about thirty—and they all spoke well of their general treatment. Two prisoners were able to bring away, Private Morris and Private Woodbine, the latter being blind."

OATS OF BARBED STEEL

German Slim Trick to Kill the British Horses

Barbed oats are the instruments of offence invented by Germans. The War Office has had to issue to responsible officers in charge of cavalry and other mounted forces an order that every bushel of oats now must be examined carefully before it is used. It has been discovered that some of the sacks of oats purchased in the United States contained little pieces of steel, shaped like oats, and painted yellow. These are barbed, and a horse that swallowed one would have little chance of life. The placing of the barbed oats in the food is considered to be the work of Germans who have obtained employment in American granaries in order to kill the horses at 3,000 miles range.

THE QUEER HINDUS

They Rival the Chinese In Their Odd Ideas and Customs.

CASTE RULES THE SERVANT.

He Doesn't Like Work, Anyhow, and Generally Finds a Way to Dodge It.
Playing the Stringed Vina Is a Species of Unmusical Torture.

I had thought China was a queer place and that the Chinese had queer customs, but China can't entertain on the same afternoon with India. If some one had told me about their manners and customs before I got to India
I would have laughed courteously and set him down in my little book. There are some things that a Hindu will do and some that he will not do. Work is placed prominently on the latter list.

One thing that a Hindu will not do is to play on a flute. He would rather go to the flogging post than dash off a selection on a flute. But he will play a stringed instrument, called a vina, similar to the instrument played by David in the tent of Saul. This instrument looks as if it had originally been intended for a carpet stretcher, but had fallen into the hands of a musically inclined person who had borrowed a couple of piano wires and was determined to lower rents. After hearing an able-bodied Hindu pick on an instrument of this kind one can't help wishing that they would put it in the same class with the flute.

A Hindu's idea of music is to make all the noise he can. He doesn't care anything about time or rhythm. All his energy is expended in volume.
Hindu musicians are all large, splendently muscled fellows, who play as if they were going to a gymnasium regularly. When one hears them playing on a vina one can't help wondering how David ever came to make such an impression on Saul.

As soon as I got to India I hired a valet. It sounds mighty big—until you know what you have to pay a "boy"
in India. A servant is called a "boy"
even though he has whiskers and grandchildren. He said that his name was Thumb Ramalingum, or words to that effect. I couldn't remember the last consignment, so I called him Thumb, and for days I longed to ask if there was a Finger in his family.
He wore a skirt and a sheet twisted around his head. He was to be my waiter, for in India you have to furnish your own table boy. When you go to spend a day or two with a friend
you always take your own boy along to wait on you. My boy was to mend my clothes, black my shoes, get my bath water ready and hold my shirt.
The way he talked I wasn't to do anything except open my mail, put my feet on the table and enjoy life. But I soon found out that his idea and mine differed quite widely as to what enjoyment of life was.

A few minutes before the first meal
he suddenly appeared, a bit flushed,
and explained that he was of too high caste to wait on table. I tried to show

BUSY BEES IN WINTER.

How They Generate Heat to Keep the Colony Warm.

The bee upholds his reputation for industry throughout the winter months
as well as during the summer. Being susceptible to cold, the bee must turn to his colony for warmth. Communism, which in bees is so highly developed in the storing of food and caring for the young, is also the basis for the heating system.

It was found by experiment that only the shell of the cluster made by the bees in cold weather is compact.
This is formed by one to several layers of bees all solidly arranged with their heads inward, their hairs interlacing. This arrangement is perfect for conservation of the heat within.
Except for an occasional shifting of position the bees forming the shell are quiet. But within the shell strange things are going on.

It is here that the heat is generated.
And the antics are not unlike our own when we are cold. The bees are packed loosely within the shell so that there is plenty of space for many bees to be exercising at a time. Rapid fanning of the wings, shaking the body from side to side, rapid breathing and other movements are all part of the scheme for raising the temperature.
In one particular instance, when a bee
had been rapidly fanning with his wings for seven and a half minutes,
the thermometer nearest him rose half a degree F.—Pearson's Weekly.

Johnny Roche's Tower.

Standing on the banks of the river
Avon, between Mallow and Fermoy, County Cork, Ireland, is a remarkable edifice known as "Johnny Roche's Tower." The whole tower was built by the labor of one man, who subsequently resided in it. This individual, who received no education whatever,
also erected a mill, constructing the water wheel after a special design of his own. Long before the introduction of the bicycle he went about the country in a wheeled vehicle of his own construction propelled by foot power.
His last feat was to build his tomb in the middle of the river bed. John Roche died, but was not interred in the strange burying place which he selected for himself, his less original relatives deeming such a mode of sepulchre unchristian.—London Strand Mag-

The Horseshoe Legend.

much pain during the operation that Satan begged him to desist. This St.
Dunstan did, but only after he had made the evil one promise that neither he nor any of the lesser evil spirits,
his servants, would ever molest the inmates of a house where the horseshoe was displayed.

STORE OR STAGE?

A Word to Ambitious Young People Seeking a Future.

There is just as much demand among store owners and managers for high class salesmen, buyers and managers
as there is among the theatrical and movie producers for actors. Merchants want to employ ambitious young men and women who can raise themselves above the ranks of the ordinary. The work is no harder, hours no longer and pay quite as good in the stores for help
of all classes as it is in film or stage productions.

The "stars" in business are just as well paid as are those whose names grace the billboard. Where there is one film favorite who is paid $1,000 a month there are half a dozen mercantile managers who receive as much or more. There are hundreds who receive $200 a month to where there are five movie actors who receive the same.
And there are ten dollar a week
places among the members of the mob scenes, as there are ten dollar a week
jobs among the "mobs" in the stores.
Once a year or so some one graduates
from the chorus or the "supes" to a place as an understudy or star, while in business many are promoted from the ranks to positions of trust and good salaries.

and explained that he was of too high caste to wait on table. I tried to show him that it was an honor to be a good and efficient table waiter, but he wouldn't budge a step—he'd rather starve than wait on table. So I had to look around and hustle up another boy to do that part of the work. Every time I wanted him to do anything it was against his caste. His caste seemed to have a special enmity toward all work. When I wanted him to carry my bags he begged leave to be excused, as his caste didn't allow him to do such menial work, and when I gave him my shoes to be blacked he looked at me in horror. It was expressly against his caste to touch leather—a product of the sacred cow.

One day when I told him to pick the hairs out of my brush he looked at me sadly and then began to tell me about a nephew that had suddenly departed this flesh and would I be so kind as to give half a rupee to the grief stricken father and the other half to the inconsolable uncle. That was more than I could stand, and on the spot I told him that he was discharged, fired, and to get out as fast as he could.

"Thank you, sahib, thank you," said Thumb with a profound salute.

I told him that he needn't thank me for firing him, but he only bowed his head and thanked me more profusely than ever. His gratitude was as pronounced as if I had given him a rupee.

"Will you give me a recommendation kindly for the good boy I have been, sahib?"

After what a poor servant he had been, that was the last straw. It would be underhanded to foist him off on somebody else, and then suddenly I saw a way out. "Yes," I agreed enthusiastically, and I wrote for him.

"The bearer of this note with the unpronounceable name has been in my employ for two weeks. During this time I have aged perceptibly. He is a servant of caste, but he never lets work interfere with his caste. When he came to me he was a man of family, but at the rate which his family has been depleted I doubt if he has left more than enough children to last out a week. You will find him especially good at getting your shirt studs in backward and at pulling off the tips of your shoestrings."

Thumb, who made pretense of being an English scholar, read the recommendation carefully, but his mastery of words was such that he could not quite follow the meaning.

"Thank you, sahib, thank you," he said, too proud to admit that it was not clear to him. "It will be of great help to me."

"And to the other fellow, too," I said as he saluted and passed out of my life.—Homer Croy in Leslie's.

Her Status.

Ella—Nothing very serious about her. Stella—I should say not. If that woman knew the world was coming to an end next week it would be just like her to write to a newspaper asking what to do for blackheads.

The Test.

She—I doubt if you really love me. He—Why not, sweetheart? She—You never call me "little girl."

Whereupon he got very busy, and she of six feet three inches cuddled down to his arms with a contented sigh.

In Colombia there is a tree highly esteemed as a shade for the coffee plant. It is found also in tropical Brazil and possesses qualities that make it peculiarly suited for this particular use. It will live on a stony, poor soil, and a tree only eighteen months old will shade 144 square yards of ground, while when full grown it may be fifty feet high and have a spread of fifty feet on every side.

Grandeur.

"Where did your ruler get his ideas for this magnificent palace?"

"It was modeled after an American drug store," explained the grand vizier. "Some fine effects, eh?"

The Sort.

"You looked very sympathetic when Mrs. Jaggars was talking to you. Was she telling you a moving story?"

"I should say so. She's been in six houses in as many months."

Heavy Reading.

"I've seen 'French at a Glance,' but some literature can't be handled that way."

"What, for instance?"

"A railroad time table at a glance."

No More Fairy Tales.

"Children are getting all mixed these days."

"What's on your mind?"

"My little nephew only knows Robin Hood as a character in a comic opera."

Cause For Gladness.

The pessimist was suffering from rheumatism.

"Every bone in my body aches," he complained.

"You ought to be glad you are not a herring," said the optimist.

Brief and Witty.

A candidate for the office of auditor of public accounts was suddenly called upon for a speech. On rising he commenced:

"Fellow citizens, you have called on me for a few remarks. I have none to make. I have no prepared speech. Indeed, I am no speaker. I do not desire to be a speaker. I only want to be an auditor."—London Answers.

Will Bear Watching.

"Why are you so suspicious of him?"

"He has taken pains to tell me at least a dozen times within the past day or two that he is my friend."

Suitable.

"What kind of an apartment did the singer get?"

"I suppose nothing less would satisfy her than a suite thing in A flat."

Not the Last.

The Wife—Those trousers of yours look as if they were on their last legs. The Husband—Well, they're not. Johnnie will have to wear 'em after I get through with 'em.

There are better opportunities for ambitious people in mercantile fields than as actors. The demand is many times greater. Owners are always on the watch for some one who will justify a promotion. But positions cannot be had without effort. They must be won by hard work, study and an overwhelming desire to get ahead. At all events we say, Stick to the store.—Farm Machinery.

The Demon of the Desert.

It is not generally known how a devil rides a camel, but Mr. Hans Vicher acquired the information and imparts it in his volume, "Through the Sahara."

One night a camel suddenly ran amuck. Other camels followed suit, and a general panic ensued.

"The frightened yells of my escort told me that a ghoul, a wicked demon of the desert, had seized the camel. I was told how these evil spirits sometimes took a fancy to mount a camel; the camel would then look to see who was digging it in the ribs, and, perceiving no one, fear would grip its heart, for then it knew that the devil was on its back."

Was Not a Fungus.

A certain worthy minister was a keen and accomplished naturalist. His specialty was a remarkable knowledge of different classes of fungi. His enthusiasm, however, was but indifferently appreciated by certain members of his parish, and one day when calling upon one of them, a sour old spinster, he was considerably embarrassed when she reminded him of the exact length of time that had elapsed since he had last paid her a visit. He began to make excuses for the delay, when she abruptly and curtly cut him short.

"If I was a toadstool," she said, with grim irony, "you'd have been to see me long ago!"—London Tit-Bits.

To Make Cold Cream.

Take half a pound of lard, half a cupful of olive oil, half a teaspoonful of powdered borax. Melt these and let them come to a boiling point. Take half a cupful of water, 5 cents' worth of rose essence or essence of geranium. Add these last two (water and essence) to the boiling fat by drops and then stir until cool by setting kettle into a larger kettle or something larger filled with cold water and beat it into a cream with the egg beater. This will keep in jars for months if kept where it is cool and is a fine, harmless and very inexpensive cream to use.

Making Them Match.

"Do you think he would do well as a speaker?"

"He might be quite a success if he confined himself to mixed audiences."

"Why only that kind?"

"Because he is a mixed reasoner."

Modern Miracle.

"Do you believe in miracles?"

"Yes. I left my umbrella in a car the other morning and got it when I inquired at the place where articles that are found in the cars are supposed to be turned in."

READING THE HAND.

Most Murderers, it is Said, Show Their Characters in Their Palms.

A French savant contends that the murderer has a distinctive hand. His face may not be hideous, but the hands are and are self condemnatory. Evidence on the latter characteristic is scanty and rests upon the investigations of the French criminologists; but, as to the former, it is a fact that some of the most brutal murders on record have been perpetrated by men whose countenances habitually wore a very mild expression.

Deeming was a pleasant man to speak to until crossed, but some of the authorities who examined his hands declare his broad thumb indicated the born murderer.

The true ballheaded thumb gives to the first phalange a round, bulbous appearance. It is short, and the nail is so abbreviated as to suggest that it has been gnawed. It is embedded in the flesh, which rises on either side and beyond it.

Dumollard, a wholesale murderer, had a hand remarkable for its thickness and length of palm in proportion to the fingers. He had a significant sign, common to most murderers—namely, almost entire absence of lines in the palm, save the three principal ones—the lines of life, head and heart. These lines were very strongly defined. The line of the head—the center line extending across the palm—was violently cut by the line of life running upward from the wrist. Chiromancy interprets this to foretell a violent death. His fingers were knotty and uneven at the nail phalanges.

THE ART OF NORWAY.

It Reflects the Early Peasant and the National Character.

Long before the art of painting was practiced in Norway the Norwegian peasant, like his Magyar contemporary, had developed an art that was and still remains thoroughly national. The Norwegian peasant art, like that of other countries, is characterized by a primitive purity of color that anticipates the art of today and forms, so to speak, a connecting link that ties the present to the past. If we remember the crude vigor and bold color of this early peasant art we shall perhaps better understand contemporary Norwegian art.

Temperamentally they are the same. We find in both the same characteristic forthrightness of expression, the same bold, uncompromising design and color. Moreover, both are alike in that the aim of each is to fill a given space with a design that will form a decoration. Much of modern art is in this direction, and contemporary Norwegian art is no exception to this.

If this art appears somewhat rough and crude, more forceful and original than polished and ingratiating, it is the fault of the national character rather than of the art itself. We are not a suave people; we are somewhat blunt and direct, and these racial qualities are expressing themselves more and more in our art as it gradually emancipates itself from foreign influences and returns to its basic character.—J. Light of the Firefly.

Probably as far back as 1733 it was known that the luminous parts of fireflies, glowworms, etc., could be dried and preserved out of contact with the air for considerable periods without losing their light giving power. In late years it has been possible to prove this permanence of the light giving power for at least eighteen months. Kastle and McDermitt were able, upon opening tubes containing the luminous organs of the common firefly preserved in hydrogen or a vacuum, to obtain quite a brilliant light by simply moistening with water. The light was increased when hydrogen peroxide replaced water. However, scientists have yet to discover the firefly's secret of producing light without heat.

A City of Corpses.

The city of Kum, in Persia, has long had a reputation as a city of corpses. There are said to be more illustrious dead buried in Kum than in any other Persian city except Meshad. One of the few women honored in the country of the shah has a magnificent shrine erected here—Fatima, sister of Imam Riza. Eleven hundred years ago she was laid to rest in Kum, and everybody who is anybody in Persia still desires sepulture beside her.—London Chronicle.

Derby's Market Stone.

In Derby, England, there is a curious relic of the great plague of 1665. It stands in the arboretum gardens and is commonly called "the market stone." To avoid infection the country folk from the surrounding villages would leave their orders for anything they might want with the watchman, who used to go into the town, make the necessary purchases and deposit them on "the market stone."

AUDIENCES ARE FICKLE.

It Doesn't Take Much to Spoil a Fine Scene or a Speech.

One of my favorite fancies is of an audience composed of the elect of the ages, with Socrates, Homer, Sophocles, Demosthenes, Praxiteles, Cicero, Horace, Dante, Moliere, Milton, Goethe, Washington Irving, Ben Jonson, Coleridge, Thackeray and Bernard Shaw in the front row and back of them an assemblage of personages of like degrees listening to William Shakespeare lecturing on "The Sanity of Hamlet."

I can imagine him holding that crowd with a fascinated interest, working upward through increasingly palpitating stages to a volcanic climax. And then in the midst of it I can fancy a tortoise shell cat prowling forth from the wings and as she crosses the stage stealing every eye and intelligence in that crowd away from the speaker, including the attention of Homer, who detects from the rustle that something is happening and who finds himself suddenly possessed with a demoniac desire to get away from the speech.

No audience can resist a cat, a dog, a bat, a bird or any simple diversion. The more commonplace the interruption the more splendidly the audience concentrates upon it.—Victor Murdock in Collier's Weekly

The Red Cross Society

The Society is much indebted to the citizens of Roblin for sending in a donation of $9.25, the proceeds of a good lecture given on a very stormy night; also to Dr. C. E. Muller, of Baltimore, for another donation of $5.00.

It is often feared that parcels sent to the prisoners of war never reach their destination, but we have information which proves beyond a doubt that all parcels sent through the Red Cross Society are certain of being received by those for whom they are intended. Mrs. Herbert Daly received a letter of acknowledgement from the mother of the prisoner to whom she has recently sent a box. The letter was from Kingston, Jamaica and stated that the prisoner's mother had regularly been sending him food, etc., ever since he had been interned, but that Mrs. Daly's parcel sent through the Red Cross had been the very first
he had received.

Please do not forget the Red Cross Society's part in the Dominion Day's celebration.

In view of the terrible casualty lists that appear in each day's papers, the fact becomes convincingly evident that there is much we can, and should do to assist in relieving some of the re- sultant suffering. Though there is much sadness brought to many homes through the recent engagements, we are prouder than ever of our gallant troops, of our brave Canadians, and of the many heroic deeds we read of. Let us then do all we can to help them in the "bearing of the burden," in however slight a manner.

A case is being packed for French and Belgian Relief, so if anyone has clothing to contribute kindly send it to our room either on Thursday or Saturday afternoons, when it is open until 5.30 o'clock.

PROVINCIAL NOTES

SEVERAL CHANGES.

Mr. G. W. Ecclestone, of Brace- bridge, has been elected by acclama- tion for the provincial constituency of Muskoka, following the death of Mr. S. H. Armstrong, former member. The Liberals did not offer any opposi- tion.

There are also vacancies in the pro- vincial constituencies of North Perth and south-west Toronto; in the form- er, owing to the retirement of James Torrance, M.P.P., to become collector of customs for the city of Stratford, and in the second case, owing to the death of Hon. J. J. Foy, former At- torney General and Minister without Portfolio, in the Conservative Govern- ment.

It is not yet definitely arranged whether or not Liberals will contest these seats.

FARMERS OF WEST DURHAM.

An excellent farmers' meeting, at which live problems of interest to the agriculturalists of the province were discussed, was held at Bowmanville in connection with the Liberal Con- vention for the provincial constituency of West Durham. William John Bragg, farmer, of Darlington Township was chosen as the candidate for the next provincial election.

G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., of West Peterboro, and Nelson Parliament, M.P.P., of Prince Edward County, both of whom are farmers, were the leading speakers. Patriotism was the key note of both their addresses—pa- triotism, both in connection with the war and the duties of Canadian citi- zens at home, especially in the farm- ing industry. Mr. Parliament em- phasized the need of more special- ized agricultural education, co-operation, tile draining and rural credits. Mr. Gillespie devoted his attention largely to the dairying branch of farming, and emphasized the aggressive agri- cultural policy of the Liberal party, as promulgated in resolutions in the Legislature the last two sessions. Partisan politics were not discussed.

THE WET SPRING.

Crops Suitable for Late Sowing in Ontario and Quebec.

In some parts of Ontario the continued wet weather that has characterized this season up to the present has prevented the sowing of some of the usual crops at the usual time and has had a tendency to discourage the farmer. Such, however, should not be the feeling since the possibilities of producing crops on land not yet sown, are practically as good as ever provided the weather improves a bit and the right crops be sown in the right way and properly looked after.

Among crops sure of proving satisfactory even at this late date are barley for grain, peas and oats for forage, buckwheat, millet, Hungarian grass, corn for forage or ensilage, swedes, white or flat turnips and rape.

BARLEY would likely do well even yet on fairly well drained land. Sow about 2 bushels per acre.

PEAS and OATS sown 3 bush. oats and 1 bush. peas per acre to be cut green for hay may be expected to give profitable returns if sown anywhere before June 25th.

MILLETS and HUNGARIAN GRASS have wonderful possibilities as forage producers and even for seed for poultry or swine if sown before July 10th.

BUCKWHEAT may be sown up to July 10th with certainty of profitable returns on almost any kind of land where water does not stand.

CORN for FORAGE—Early or flint varieties, (Longfellow Comptons Early, etc.) should be chosen. Sow thinly up to June 25th.

SWEDES thrive in such a season as we are having and may be expected to give good returns if sown anywhere before the end of June.

FLAT TURNIPS or WHITE TURNIPS, while not so satisfactory as swedes for most purposes, do well if sown even as late as the end of July and are most excellent cattle feed, being particularly suitable for dairy cows. They do not keep as well as swedes.

RAPE for pasturage is of great value for swine, sheep or beef cattle.

With late seeding most thorough preparation of the seed bed is absolutely necessary if success is to be hoped for. If land has to be ploughed, turn

HELP US---HELP OUR BOYS IN FRANCE !

To THE PUBLIC :—

For nearly eighteen months the members of the various societies of the Ontario Woman's Christian Temperance Union, have been providing the working capital of first one and then two of the Y.M.C.A. men in France.

One of these is Capt. Ed. Archibald, the famous athlete, who was sent as one of Canada's representatives to the Greek Marathon.

THE SOUP POTS.

Amongst other provisions for the comfort of the troops, the W.C.T.U., is supplying Capt. Archibald with the money to provide hot soup each night for all the "listening" parties, engineer squads, patrol, etc., in the command to which he is attached. The soup is made each day. At night six huge iron pots are filled and variously distributed. And between sundown and sunrise an average of 1200 men partake of this nourishing, stimulating food. It takes $81.00 per month to provide the barley, rice, carrots and onions. The stock is made from the large quantities of bones, cut out of the meat before it is cooked by the divisional cooks, and that, prior to the advent of Capt. Archibald's soup pots, were buried or burned.

This is but one of the many ways in which the men, who have offered their all in defence of the Empire, are being cared for.

HAVE YOU ONE ?

Capt Archibald is asking for small musical instruments, such as mouth organs, flutes, bones, piccolos, concertinas, etc., for the use of the soldiers. Many of the officers and of the Christian workers in France have referred to the wonderful effect, on the exhausted, nerve-racked men, of music of any sort.

Feeling sure that in many homes there are unused or little used instruments, such as Capt. Archibald desires, the W.C.T.U., of this town, would be very grateful if the owners would donate them and thus help to lighten the awful strain under which our brave boys are fighting our battles.

Did you notice in recent press reports that when the Germans, opposite some Irish Battalions suggested that, on account of the Dublin insurrection, they mutiny and desert the British army, the men drowned them out with "Rule Britannia," played on mouth organs.

Let us, who are living in peace and safety, while the soldiers of our Empire are dying in the trenches, do the little we can to comfort them.

Any gifts of money or musical instruments, will be gratefully received by our local union and can be left with R. B. Allen, Market Square.

I doubt if he did love her people very deeply, but he appreciated those whom

Letter From Lieut

The following interesting letter has been received by W. J. T. Tobey, who went to the front in November in charge of a machine gun from the 71st Battalion, and was sent to the battlefront. Lieut. Tobey has been in the front for some weeks and has been relating experiences, some of which are related in this letter:

"Well I'm in the trenches having a week out in the line. I believe we are sure to have a warm time. Every morning Fritz starts in to support trenches and H. O. makes it pretty uncomfortable as the shells he uses are pretty heavy. The ones this morning are what we call 'coal boxes' and 'sausages' from, but which kind break you would someone has taken a great (say about two bushels) and upset it about ten or in the air. They sure do and the splinters of the shell fly in all directions hear them coming and then it is not unlike that train as it comes rolling naturally you have time everyone gets down as trenches as he possibly are lots who would like the trench mats if they I was hugging the bottom of the trench this morning a piece of a fifty cent piece came through the air and hit just above my head, it came down and hit me on the stomach some at the time damage.

"Well the shelling usually for about an hour and then every opens up and lets them One of our batteries (I think) have no less than 18 eight minutes yesterday as a result Fritz shut up and kept quiet for a few gave us a chance to get sleep.

"By the way, I saw the Battalion the other day one D'Arcy Sneath is with a day or two ago were in some trenches we are in their officers, when I about Lieut. Sneath told had been sent out a few suffering from shell shock a dugout not many years ago I'm in now, when it in by one of Fritz's shells buried in the ruins. I though he will be alright.

preparation of the seed bed is absolutely necessary if success is to be hoped for. If land has to be ploughed, turn a shallow furrow and in case land is grassy, it will be much better to plough again even if already ploughed last fall or early this spring. After ploughing roll, disc two or three times and harrow before seeding. After seeding roll again if surface is very dry.

In any case get the seed in well and what is quite as important in the case of hoed crops above mentioned see to it that they are kept absolutely free from weeds for the next two months. Neglect in this important detail means failure when crops are sown late.

If a choice of crops is possible, sow corn, buckwheat, turnips and Hungarian grass on the lighter soils and other crops on other kinds of soil, that is, clays, clay loams, peaty or mucky soils, etc., but any one of these crops will do quite well on almost any kind of land.

Drawn In.

Hanson—How did you come to marry the Widow Boncoeur instead of her daughter? I thought it was the daughter you were after. Janson—Well, so I was, to tell the truth, but when I asked Marie to marry me one day she said, "Ask mamma," and when I started to do it I stammered so with nervousness that mamma said "Yes" before I had the question out.—Paris Journal.

Friction and Velocity.

When one solid body glides over the surface of another the coefficient of friction diminishes as the velocity increases and nearly vanishes when the velocity attains a certain critical value. This diminution of friction is due to the air which partially separates the two bodies at low relative velocities and separates them completely at the critical and all higher velocities.

Plenty of Security.

"Do you feel you are able to support my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed?" asked the skeptical millionaire.

"Yes, indeed, sir," replied the favored suitor. "Since our engagement was announced almost any of the banks are willing to discount my notes."

There will be no celebration at Napanee Dominion Day.

"It makes me so happy."

I doubt if he did love her people very dearly, but he overlooked those characteristics which a more selfish man would have resented. If it was what a schoolboy would call a "bluff" it was a gloriously unselfish one.

Most of us can stand the tempers and idiosyncrasies of our own when we alone have to bear them. It is when we see them through the eyes of a third person that they become unendurable. That is perhaps one reason why so few roofs are large enough to cover two families.

If each "in-law" exercised toward the members of the household into which he or she married the same pardoning love that is exercised toward one's own the aspersions cast upon the mother-in-law would die a natural death because they would have nothing on which to feed.—Virginia Terhune Van de Water in Mother's Magazine.

Carved by Newton.

In the Newton chapel of the church at Colsterworth, in Lincolnshire, England, where Sir Isaac Newton was born, is to be seen one of the most interesting relics of the greatest of philosophers. It consists of a sundial and was carved by Newton when he was a boy on a stone in the house in which he was born, his only tool being a pen-knife. There it remained for many years until removed to Colsterworth church. Unfortunately the organ has been built directly in front of this interesting relic, so that unless one knows of the stone's existence and its presence in the church it is overlooked.

Nelson's Message.

In a book called "National Humor" a serious footnote states that Nelson's celebrated message, "England expects each man to do his duty," was phrased by the famous admiral as "Nelson expects," etc., and that one of his officers suggested the change of the first word to "England." Nelson's greatness was evident in his immediate acceptance of the change. A smaller man would have felt insulted at the proposed elimination of his own name.

Fees.

"How much does that stylish doctor of yours charge?"

"Ten dollars a visit."

"Gee! How often has he called at your home this month?"

"Twenty times."

"Gosh! You owe him $200, then?"

"Nope. Only $10. He's made the other nineteen calls trying to collect it."

FIVE VIRTUES.

To be able under all circumstances to practice five things constitutes perfect virtue. These are gravity, generosity of soul, sincerity, earnestness and kindness.—Confucius.

ND CANADIANS

LETTER FROM ROBT. JOHNSTON

Belgium and France,

June 6th, 1916.

Mrs. Wm. B. Johnston,
Napaneé, Ontario,

My Dear Mother and All:—Your
welcomed and very much appreciated letter of May 14th, received to-day. I assure you I could not have been more pleased at receiving anything else, as I have been in waiting for your letter such a long time. I had not heard from you for ever so long; I don't understand how it was, but it is the fact. I thank you so very much for the snaps, as all others that I had along with my personal things were destroyed in a Chateau, which our "victorious enemy" blew to the ground. They are very good, indeed, Mother, I prize them very much, and will try to maintain them. It gives one a little more cheer than that which we are accustomed to receive,
over around these wild quarters of the world. I say wild because it would not be right to use any other expression. It is just "scientific murder," here or in other words, man against man's own invention. I cannot say that it is not made as comfortable as can be possible to be made, as regards the comforts of our brave men, but comfort does not go a long way in the front line. That is where the nerve racking trial comes in you understand,

but I must own that I am at present not in the front line. I have been called back to the co'y, by request of my faithful friend and ex-officer, commanding our No. 3 Sig. Section,
as I had completed nearly sixteen months of my service in around and about the front line. I have him to thank for his kindness, which he has always endeavored to show to our boys and myself. In this, "Our Branch" of the army we do not get much of a write-up in the newspapers as regards our work. But as you will understand, and others know, that we cannot do without telegraphic communications. In battle we have to be under two different fires, repairing and finding trouble in the lines, so as to keep the higher offices of command

in communication with the happenings in and around the front line,
and also for the good and welfare of our boys, who are holding the line.
If it was not for communication they might all be wiped out of existence.
So you will understand our work
clearly, in having to keep up communications. You may think, because it is a telephone line, that is so small it would escape being hit. But I may say that they do not fire to hit them, although they do get them direct at times, but there are so many shells fired, and again concussion breaks' them, but high explosive shrapnel breaks the most of them.
Also the shrapnel falling from shells that are fired at aeroplanes. The lines are all laid on the surface of the earth, and the Infantry trip over them and break them very often. We cannot wait if our communication has been broken until darkness to repair it, although we have many lines. But we have to go crawling out over the line on our stomach, until we find the trouble. If we delay its repairs, chances are the others will get broken
and then we are out of communication, with some parts of our front.
We do not have so many casualties as the men in the front line, but as regards the strength of signal units we get our share of casualties. They are most generally killed when we have any. So I have just given you a brief outline of some of our duties. We are at present in the worst part of the line in the British western front. This last week we have been in a very heavy action, but our troops still maintain the good name that they bear, and have held the Huns in their dug-outs behind the notorious "Mole Hill," as this is all that is left of it.

We suffer our losses, but we always repay the enemy with the same sort of coin. I have been in excellent health, although, until this last month and I have not been feeling as good as I would like to.

I have seen Clark a few times of late but not for long at a time. We have

SYNOPSIS.

Dudley Larnigan, district attorney, attacks the liquor and vice trusts. He is killed by an agent of a secret society, the committee of fifteen. His son, Bruce Larnigan, is elected district attorney and takes up the fight. Bruce is in love with Dorothy Maxwell, whose father is head of the insurance trust.

Bruce Larnigan is decoyed to an evil resort in an effort to frame him up. He has the police commissioner present. A fire starts in a tenement. Larnigan saves the children of Dow, one of the conspirators. This man agrees to expose the trust. He is murdered by the gang.

Stanford Stone, head of the graft syndicate, insists Larnigan must be killed. Gunmen are posted in the park to kill Larnigan in his automobile. Dorothy Maxwell, over the dictaphone, hears the plot. Two more conspirators are killed, and Larnigan again escapes.

Bruce Larnigan goes to Chicago to fight the grain trust. He is followed by a desperado, is assaulted and thrown overboard. He is rescued by his long lost brother Tom, who returns to New York and takes up the fight. Dodson, the head of the grain trust, fearing exposure, kills himself.

BRUCE LARNIGAN, lying helpless on his cot in a Chicago hospital as the result of the attack that had so nearly cost him his life, was still full, despite his pain, of his desire to crush the graft syndicate and avenge his father's fate as well as his own injuries. Unable to move himself, he accepted with delight the offer of his brother Tom to enlist in his place until he recovered.

"Our next blow should be at the textile trust, Tom," he said. "Ayers—C. Wood Ayers, his head—is as mean a scoundrel as any I have fought yet. He crushes out the lives of his workers and grafts by getting congress to add to the tariff on his products on the plea that he has to pay higher wages than European mills and so should have protection."

Tom. Moreover, Ayers, with a refinement of meanness, was doing his utmost to provoke an outbreak. At his instance strangers appeared in town—thugs from Boston—who mingled with the workers and pretended to be among them. Acting under his orders, these men set fire to one or two buildings, and the strikers, of course, were blamed. As a result state troops were sent.

"Be careful," Tom pleaded. "They've got the soldiers now. What they want is a good excuse to fire into a crowd of strikers. They think that will create a reign of terror and that the strikers will all go back to work—with public sympathy on the other side."

Gradually Tom's counsel bore fruit. He was able to make the soberer spirits among the strikers listen to him and so prevent the I. W. W. men, whom he suspected of being secretly in the pay of Ayers, from inciting them to acts of violence.

Tom decided, too, to adopt an old trick of Bruce's. Trusting to his being unknown to Ayers, he slipped a note into his pocket one day.

"Bruce Larnigan is out of the way for the time, but his brother is not," ran the note. "I know your scheme here, and I shall block your plans. Be careful or you will be the first to suffer for the crimes of you and your associates. Tom Larnigan."

that!" he snarled. "I'd show him whether or not it was safe to threaten me, the bound! But he'll keep out of my way, you'll see!"

"Tom Larnigan!" said Ben, seeming to be vastly surprised. "Why, my old partner here is always talking about a man of that name. Maybe he can find him for you. Shall I ask him?"

Ayers nodded. And Tom, coming up, grinned sourly at the sight of the note.

"Know him? I should say so, the skunk!" he said. "Saw him tonight."

"But he's no friend of yours, eh?" chuckled Ayers.

"Friend?" snapped Tom. "No, sir!"

"If you'll excuse your friend I've got a proposition to make to him," said Ayers silkily. He led the way to his library. "Look here," he said. "If you'll bring that man Larnigan here to me I'll pay you $1,000, cash down—tonight! That's all I want. You need not do anything more."

"Easy money!" said Tom, grinning. "I'll go out now and see if I can find him."

"Go, and good luck to you!" said Ayers, greatly excited.

Tom, as he reached the street, was amused.

"But I guess I'd do well to have some one with me if I go back," he reflected. "I mightn't get in otherwise, and I want to talk with Mr. C. Wood Ayers when he's alone."

He hung about for a time, wishing he knew some one who would be willing to impersonate him for a few moments. He dared not trust a stranger. He was afraid that he might encounter some spy. And, while he waited, by the strangest of coincidences he saw an automobile pass, in the back seat of which sat Dorothy Maxwell. Had he only known the truth he would have stopped that car at the risk of his own life.

For in it Dorothy was going to save him, as she believed. Deeply suspicious of Stone, she had been watching him, and she had learned that Stone, afraid that Ayers would fail, had sent Dunn, the successor of the dead bully, Black, to attack Tom at Lyndham. One of his women spies had spotted Tom, and had reported after Ayers had promised to take care of Tom. She was to go with two thugs and point Tom out to them.

Dorothy, determined to save Bruce's brother, disguised herself as this woman and succeeded in being taken along in the car in her place. It was as she set out upon this errand that Tom saw her, and sneered at the sight of her, since he had recognized her at once.

However, he dismissed Dorothy from his mind. And at last he decided to risk returning alone to Ayers' house. Until, as he neared it, he came upon a young man reeling, plainly helpless from drink.

"The very man!" thought Tom. "Here, bucko," he said, taking the young fellow's arm, "I'll look after you."

"Mush 'blished," said the young fellow. He went along as meekly as if Tom had been his oldest friend.

Tom's plan worked to perfection.

"Ah, you got him! Good!" cried Ayers. "Here, take him in and pitch him on to that sofa. I'll settle with you before I talk to you."

ROUTED BY AN

Story of the Most Curious Victory Won on British Soil

Did you ever hear of a fierce fighters that fled in flight? It was attacked by the "Hallelujah!" shouted by the shouters could not do something to do with the effect of the word. The knowledge of a foreigner, who utilized a curious fact in no remarkable topographical must be given the final most interesting victory won on British soil. It was twenty years after the beginning conquest of Britain by the Saxons and Jutes from Germany a small band of those who formed the nucleus of a core was on the point of being a vast army of ferocious Picts.

There were no better fighters than the Picts, and the native together with the Saxon inva-

than European mills and so should have protection."

"He does, doesn't he?" asked Tom. "No; he pays the lowest possible wages to a lot of poor foreign laborers he is exploiting. Even now they are on the verge of striking, and I happen to know that he is planning to teach them a terrible lesson if they do. Go there, Tom, and see if you can save those poor people."

Tom, to avert suspicion, went to Lyndham, Mass., the site of the great Ayers mills, and obtained work as a laborer. Outwardly he was just like all the other workers; actually, he was able to learn many things.

Meanwhile Dorothy Maxwell, hearing of Bruce's almost fatal injuries, had been deeply shocked. She felt, though she knew that she could not prove this, that Stanford Stone was in some way responsible for what had happened to Bruce, and, in spite of the European mills and so should have protection."

He was not, however, as unknown as he fondly imagined himself to be. The spies of Stone and Ayers were all around, and some hint of Tom's activities had already come to the graft syndicate. Even before he slipped the warning note into Ayers' pocket there had been discussions among the chief grafters, as to the best means of securing his elimination from the fight.

Tom felt that he was terribly helpless. Above all he needed money, and he was almost penniless. And then one day chance brought help to his very door. An automobile had broken down outside of his cottage, and he went out to offer aid. To his amazement, he discovered that its only occupant was Ben Travers, with whom he had unsuccessfully prospected for gold in the west.

"Tom," cried Ben, "I've looked everywhere for you! I struck it rich last year, Tom. I'm a millionaire! Honest I am! What are you doing here?"

"It's a long story, Ben," said Tom. "Come in, and I'll tell you."

Ben accepted the invitation and listened, wide eyed with wonder, to Tom's tale. Tom then read a list of grievances of the textile workers.

"I want to buy a stack of chips and sit in that game!" Ben announced when Tom had finished. "By gorry, that's the sort of action I'm looking for! I guess my money will help, too—eh? You come to New York with me and I'll back your game to the last cent!"

So Tom was able, sure of all the financial backing he needed, to go to New York. And, arriving, Ben found an invitation to a reception in the home of Ayers himself.

"I'll take you with me—introduce you as my old partner," said Ben. "My partner you are, too, Tom—that goes!"

Ayers, at a meeting of the graft syndicate, produced his note of warning from Tom to the consternation of all and especially of Stone, who had believed Tom well out of the way.

"You're a joke, Stone," said Ayers cheerfully. "Leave this man to me. I'll get rid of him!"

There was no opposition. Every one was glad to have some one else undertake the task of removing one of the hated and feared name of Larnigan.

At the reception, which was held that night, Ben and Tom were late in arriving. But Tom, making good use of his eyes and his ears alike, managed to pick up some information that seemed likely to be of value later. While he was so engaged Travers made a point of talking to Ayers and expressed great sympathy with the textile magnate in connection with the labor troubles at his mills.

"The better you treat 'em the more they want," said Ben in pursuance of his plan to catch Ayers off his guard. "I believe in sweating them! Working people are meant to work, not to strike for more money."

"You're a man after my own heart!" laughed Ayers, entirely without suspicion that Ben was only leading him on. "Why, they've even begun to threaten me personally. Look here! Here's a letter I got the other day."

From his pocket he pulled the note that Tom had sent him and smoothed it out for Ben to read.

"I'd like to meet the man who wrote

you before I talk to you."

Tom obeyed. Then he followed Ayers into the library.

"Keep your money," he said. "I've tricked you, Mr. Ayres. It's I that am Tom Larnigan."

Ayers staggered to his feet.

"You?" he cried. "My God, who is the other man?"

He leaped for the door. And Tom, following, saw that the couch had mysteriously closed. Suddenly he understood. The sofa was a "murder couch," designed to close and kill its occupant! It was murder Ayers had planned—the murder of an innocent man that Tom had, unwittingly, helped him to do.

Ayers struggled desperately with the couch. At last he got it open. The young man was there—dead, and Ayers cried out in agony at the sight of his face.

"I've killed my son!" he groaned—"my only son!"

Slowly Tom passed out. He met a policeman.

"Here's my name and address, officer," he said. "You'd better go to the Ayers house. A case of something like murder."

And meanwhile Dorothy had aroused the suspicions of Stanford Stone's thugs. They had gagged and bound her and thrust her down in the car, while they went into a roadhouse to celebrate their success in advance.

Five Rules For Becoming Rich.

In the American Magazine are the following rules that will give you your first start in becoming a millionaire:

- First.—Spend less than you earn.
- Second.—Pay ready money. Never run in debt.
- Third.—Never anticipate uncertain profits by expending them before received.
- Fourth.—Keep a regular account of your earnings and expenses.
- Fifth.—Start a savings bank account.

Booby.

"Yes," said Audrey. "I spent the entire evening telling him that he had a terrible reputation for kissing girls against their will."

"And what did he do?"

"He sat there like a booby and denied it."

Friendship.

True, it is most painful not to meet the kindness and affection you feel you have deserved and have a right to expect from others, but it is a mistake to complain, for it is no use. You cannot extend friendship with a cocked pistol.

"I'd do anything else for you, father," she cried, "but I can't do that! I'm afraid of him!"

When Stone called that night she gave him back his ring.

Stone did not at once show his power, however.

"It's girlish nonsense, that's all," he told Maxwell. "I shan't hold you responsible yet, man; don't be frightened. But, of course, if the worst comes to the worst, I shall expect you to use your authority over her as her father. But it won't come to that, I'm sure. She'll come to her senses in time."

Tom Larnigan, deeply distrustful of Dorothy, would have been vastly cheered had he known her decision.

As yet he had not dared to tell Bruce of her treachery, fearing the effect the news would have upon his brother in his weakened condition.

In Lyndham the threatened strike had been called. I. W. W. organizers, preaching the industrial revolution and the right of workers who were underpaid to make actual war, by destroying the property of their employers, were stirring up all sorts of trouble. Tom, while holding the deepest sympathy for the workers, advised them against the destruction of property.

PLANT THE GARDEN

Some Seeds That You Should Use at Once.

SEVERAL FREE BLOOMERS.

In Planning Your Plot Always Bear In Mind Where Certain Plants Will Go
and Their Relation to Other Flowers and Other Colors.

While seeds are germinating and plants are very small they must be handled with the utmost care and precaution, for, tiny and insignificant as the young seedling may appear, it is extremely sensitive to changes in temperature, too much or too little moisture, gas in the room, disease and all the things which sometimes even larger plants have not the strength to resist.

There are a few flowers that should be started in the seed pans. One is salvia, or scarlet sage. It is such a daring color that it must be planted with exceedingly good judgment—not prominently, for it will make itself
seen in whatever distance or concealment it is placed, and not close to the porch of a red brick house, a mistake
which is so frequently made, but it should be near blending or well contrasting colors. Salvia is one of the last flowers to bloom in the fall, but it is slow growing, and the seed must be started at once.

Verbenas are free blooming and generally satisfactory, but they must be chosen carefully with regard to colors.
Avoid the scarlet and other shades of red and purple unless you know exactly where they are to be put and are sure that they will not clash with other things. The white is lovely in a small garden where there are already flowers of many colors.

It will please you later if you sow one pan of salpiglossis and any of the varieties with gold. The flowers are so beautifully veined they should be popular.

You should have snapdragon or antirrhinum in the soft rose shades or yellows. Snapdragon seedlings must be transplanted into another pan as soon as they can be handled and watered cautiously, as they have a fatal habit of "damping off"—that is, the stem rots close to the ground.

A few seeds of Cobaea scandens, the cup and saucer vine, may be started in a three or four inch pot and the strongest plant left to grow until it is time to plant out of doors.

"The purple perfume of petunias"
may be remembered now in your plans
—and the asters.

Nemesia and terenia are two dainty flowers not often seen in gardens, but delightful, as is also the little blue lobella, the crystal palace compacta.

Ferns in variety are available for the window box and may be selected at any florist's to suit the taste of the grower, but dwarf varieties are better suited for the room available. Ferns may be grown with begonias satisfactorily. Both require a temperature lower than the average living room.

Coleus is another group of plants that may be grown in a window box, but they must have sun. The leaves of these plants have a wide range of color and marking as well as of size and shape. They must have a warmer atmosphere than the plants already mentioned, a temperature of 55 degrees to 60 degrees at night being desirable.
The mealy bug is often quite troublesome on coleus.

For an upright plant growing a foot or eighteen inches high aspidistra is satisfactory. The leaves of this plant grow in somewhat the same manner as garden flags, but there are varieties with variegated leaves as well as those with green leaves.

Take Care of Your Veil.

The appearance of a veil depends on its freshness, and its freshness depends on the way it is taken care of. So it is well worth everybody's time to keep a veil free from wrinkles. Roll it, if possible, on a cylinder especially kept for the purpose. This can be covered with silk or cretonne, and it should be a little wider than the veil kept on it.

Another good way to keep a veil fresh is to fold it, pulling it smooth and wrinkleless as you fold over and over, with one hand at each side of the veil.

Never fold a wet veil, as the folds will stick together if you do.

Blue veils of lace and net are smart with blue suits and frocks, and plum or purple veils, too, are worn with suits of those colors.

Begonias are admirable plants for growing in window boxes. The foliage of all begonias is attractive, but especially so are the beautifully marked leaves of the Rex variety. The beefsteak, Gloire de Lorraine and other varieties may be expected to grow well

How to Transfer.

Here are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you to any material.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "windowpane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the goods. If one-half of the design only be given upon the paper and turn the other side to the fabric.

If you have carbon paper you should place the sheet between the fabric and the newspaper. The latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until worked.

Vegetable Cutlets.

Boil six large potatoes, mash them, add butter, seasoning and enough hot milk to moisten. Chop fine three button onions, fry in butter to light brown. Wash, peel and scrape and boil separately twelve small carrots and four small white turnips. Chop and add with the onions to the potato. Season to taste, add a little minced parsley and cool. Mold into small cutlets, dip in beaten egg, then powdered cracker crumbs. Fry to a golden brown in boiling fat.

Freak Shadows.

One of the mountains in Ceylon has a remarkable shadow. Instead of lying on the ground, it appears to rise up like a veil in front of the observer. This is due to mist.

We should all strive to make our lives complete. Many people only half live. Health without usefulness, intellect without unselfishness, pleasure without duty—these are incomplete and unsatisfying elements of living.

How to Amuse a Child Doomed to the Bed Awhile.

A child recovering from an illness is apt to be fretful and peevish, demanding any amount of patience on the part of a mother or an attendant.

If the child is a boy modeling in clay will be found entertaining, and by helping him form different animals and houses many an idle hour will be whiled away. If a girl, try paper flowers or paper dolls. Children also enjoy making scrapbooks. Cut attractive pictures from old colored magazines, for it should always be remembered children like bright colors. Young children can cut if they are not competent to paste.

Never let a child who is recovering from an illness sew, for it will prove tiring, the work being too intent, whereas paper clothes for dolly are sure to be enjoyed without fatigue.

A pair of toy scales and supplies, in the shape of rice, sugar, raisins and salt, to keep shop, will please a small child, and mother, of course, will do the buying.

Expensive toys are not necessary to make a child happy, for nine out of ten will prefer some simple homemade affair or an amusement they create for themselves.

That Untidy Top Drawer.

Much is gained if, instead of making linings or pads for the bureau drawers, the drawers themselves are made dainty and ready for the receptacles of articles.

First give the inside as many coats of white paint as are necessary to give a clear white tone, and then a coat of white enamel. This gives a perfectly smooth surface, which is fresher than any other lining could be.

The drawers look neat and attractive, and when cleaning is desired a simple wiping with a damp cloth produces perfect cleanliness.

The same idea could be carried out with all shelves, cupboards and drawers in the house, whether for linen, china or kitchen utensils. They are more easily cared for than when arranged with other covers. This process makes a good substitute for the highly recommended glass shelves.

Willing to Be Hanged.

One of the most curious cases of its kind on record was that of a Quebec citizen who passed himself off as a murderer for whom the police were searching. When the matter was investigated it was found that the self accused man had nothing whatever to do with the crime. "No," he said, "you're right. I'm not the murderer, but my wife leads me such a miserable life at home that I thought I would escape from matrimonial wretchedness by getting the government to hang me."—Pearson's.

Railway Car Wheels.

Everybody knows how the wheels of a railroad car are fastened to the axle. They are shrunk on—that is, put on hot and allowed to shrink in cooling so that they are practically a solid piece with the axle. These cars go around curves, and it will be observed that the outer rail covers a great deal more ground than the inner one, so that to turn the curves and finish even the outside wheel must of necessity travel considerably faster than the inner one. Yet it is fixed solidly to the axle and cannot make a fraction of a revolution more than the other one, yet the axle remains intact, and the curves are passed with untiring regularity.

Receiving More Attention Every Year
as a Commercial Crop In Kansas.

The growing of horseradish as a commercial crop is receiving more attention every year. Soil and climatic conditions in portions of Kansas are well adapted to its growth. Horseradish production near Topeka is a profitable industry. Adjacent to most cities and many small towns may be found gardeners who make a specialty of grating and bottling this crop.

"Horseradish is best adapted to a cool, deep, rich soil and a late growing season," says M. F. Ahearn, associate professor of horticulture in the Kansas State Agriculture college. "It grows until cold weather and because of its rapid growth frequently becomes a troublesome weed. It is a perennial.

"Horseradish is propagated from root cuttings, which should be smooth and straight and from four to six inches long. The tops of the cuttings should be placed from three to five inches below the surface of the soil. Horseradish should be planted twelve to eighteen inches apart in rows sufficiently wide to permit horse tillage."

The crop is harvested by plowing out, washing and grading the roots. It is necessary to grade the roots so that they will fit the grating machine. The price of horseradish varies from $8 to $50 a ton. An acre produces from two to four tons, but greater yields are obtained from deep, rich soils where there is no lack of moisture.

STRAWBERRY CULTURE.

It Is Profitable to Renew Planting Every Three or Four Years.

There are two general cultural methods of handling strawberries. One is to cultivate them clean throughout the year, and the other is lightly with straw during winter and plow this under after it has been picked in the spring.

When clean cultivation is discontinued at the harvesting season in one picking. Some growers rise in hills, while some a matted row. It is which is best, as both cess. The great advantage is that it gives the thing to lie on and keep the dirt and enables one when the ground is fairly adds organic matter to

SUBSTITUTES FOR POTASH.

Wood Ashes and Deep and Careful Plowing Offset Lack of Fertilizer.

Shortage of potash this year will work hardship to many, but the loss can in a measure be made up by the use of wood ashes as well as by deep and careful plowing. If in plowing the subsoiler is used this spring, in seven cases out of ten enough potash would be brought within reach of the plant roots to furnish all that is needed.

The effect of well preserved wood ashes is to increase indirectly the available nitrogen of the organic matter in the soil, and when the ashes are applied as a top dressing on grass lands they encourage the growth of clover and the better kinds of grasses, which then become strong enough to crowd out the inferior kinds. Wood ashes are also beneficial to corn and beets.

Ashes contain, besides potash, about 2 per cent phosphoric acid, a trace of magnesia and considerable lime. In order to get the greatest benefit from these last named elements, however, the ashes must be kept dry; otherwise some of the potash will leak out. Ashes from hard woods are richer in both phosphorus and potash than those from soft woods. The best ashes to be had are from maple, hickory, ash, oak and elm, and the ashes from twigs, the United States department of agriculture advises, are better than the ashes from the heartwood taken from the middle of an old tree. In general, the smaller and younger the wood burned the better the ashes.

Wood ashes taken from stoves and open fireplaces will average about 8 or 9 per cent of potash, or 4.5 pounds per bushel of forty-eight pounds, and 2 per cent phosphoric acid, or one pound. These percentages give a value of about 20 cents to a bushel of ashes. In addition to this value the presence of lime and considerable other constituents which act indirectly on the soil add about 10 per cent more to the value of a bushel. In purchasing ashes be sure to note the statement on the container. Canadian wood ashes, for example, are as a rule low grade ashes and are often either partially leached or mixed with foreign matter. They will analyze about 5 per cent potash and 1.5 per cent phosphoric acid.

A Chinese Trick.

The Chinese are past masters in the art of trickery, and some of their tricks are very ingenious. One is a method by which they can make a postage stamp do service almost indefinitely. The sender of the letter passes over the stamp some paste which in appearance is not unlike the gum at the back of a stamp. When the stamp is obliterated it takes the impression, but it is not even "skin deep." The receiver of the letter must be a confederate, and he passes a damp sponge over the stamp. This removes the paste and with it the postal mark, so until the stamp is worn out it can be used over and over again.

Baffled.

The word baffled now has a meaning entirely different from that applied to Tillage of Orchards.

The use of poor tools or of tools unsuited to the use of orchard tillage as well as too much horsepower are frequently responsible for unnecessary cost in the tillage of orchards. There is no one orchard operation that will probably allow more economy than that of tillage. Few growers have studied closely enough the apparent efficiency and value of such tools as the disk, spring tooth harrow and a good weeder. Nor have they worked out the most economical size of the harrows, which may be obtained in different lengths from ten feet up. The implement of proper dimensions will have a great deal to do with the efficiency and cost of the work.

Evidently In Love.

"I told that boy," remarked the teacher, "to remain after school and write some word 100 times. But I don't think it was any great punishment."

"Why not?"

"I noticed that he wrote the word 'Rosie' 100 times with an ecstatic smile."

One Drawback.

"You seem to be very comfortable here. Do you like the work of broom-making?" the female visitor to the prison asked a convict.

"I've only one fault to find with my job here lady," replied the convict.

"And what is that, may I ask?"

"It's altogether too confining."

Freak Varieties of Fruits.

New and freak varieties of fruits are frequently "gold bricks." A new or freak variety of fruit has no place on the average farm. The home orchardist should be contented with the standard varieties. Then when his trees come into bearing he will have a real orchard. If new or freak varieties are planted they will in about nine cases out of ten be worthless. The farmer should save his money and leave the testing of unknown varieties to those

THE HATCHING EGGS.

Select eggs from only the best hens in the flock. Twenty or twenty-five should be selected and the eggs from them kept for hatching purposes.

Eggs for hatching should not weigh less than two nor more than two and one-half ounces. They should not be washed, as this lowers their vitality.

The eggs should be gathered two or three times daily and placed in a dry place where the temperature is below 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

Keep the eggs on their sides and turn twice daily before putting them into the incubator or under the hen.

Avoid eggs that have transparent shells or a roughened appearance. Long, pointed or short, rounded eggs should not be used.

Use eggs uniform in size, as they absorb the heat to a better advantage. Hold no eggs for hatching purposes longer than two weeks before putting them into the incubator or under the hen.—Ohio Station.

The word knave may have a meaning entirely different from that applied to it 300 years ago. It is now understood to mean thwarted, foiled or disappointed, but then it was applied to the process of degradation by which a knight was disgraced. A baffled knight was one who had been pronounced guilty of conduct unbecoming one of his order and had accordingly been shorn of his plumes, his sword was broken before his eyes, his knightly robe torn away, his spurs cut off with a cleaver and after being publicly chastised he was declared to be baffled. The word is used in this sense by Shakespeare and other writers of that time.

Pleasant Prospect.

"Yo' isn't stopped at de Palace hotel here, is yo', boss?" inquired the colored man who was piloting a just arrived traveler from the railway station to the hostelry.

"No. But what makes you sure of it?"

"Uhkase yo' gwine dar now, sah."—Puck.

Always Careful.

"Why is it that old Closefist never has anything to say?"

"Just a development of his general character and disposition. He is miserly even with the parts of speech."

WHY SUFFER WITH BACKACHE, KIDNEYS OR RHEUMATISM NOW?

Letter Tells of Long-looked-for Prescription.

Dear Readers—If I can do any good in the world for others, I wish to do it, and I feel that it is my duty to write about the wonderful results I received from the use of "Anuric." I was suffering from kidney and bladder troubles, scalding urine, backache and rheumatism, and feet and ankles swelled so that at times I could not walk without assistance. Had taken several different kinds of kidney remedies but all failed. I sent for a box of Dr. Pierce's newest discovery, "Anuric," which I received by mail in tablet form. I soon got better and am convinced that this popular new medicine is good. I wish to recommend it to my neighbors and everybody suffering from such troubles.

MRS. M. J. SARGENT.

NOTE: You've all undoubtedly heard of the famous Dr. Pierce and his well-known medicines. Well, this prescription is one that has been successfully used for many years by the physicians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for kidney complaints, and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine, and urinary troubles.

Up to this time, "Anuric" has not been on sale to the public, but by the persuasion of many patients and the increased demand for this wonderful healing Tablet, Doctor Pierce has finally decided to put it into the stores, or send 10 cents for large trial package or 50 cents for full treatment.

Simply ask for Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Anuric" is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the ever-famous friend to ailing women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, proven by years to be the greatest general tonic and reconstructor for any one, besides being the best blood-maker known.

should save his money and leave the testing of unknown varieties to those who can afford to do it. Later he can profit by their experience.—C. W. Rapp, Oklahoma Station.

Movable Hoghouse.

A cheap, movable board house, large enough for one sow and her pigs, makes a satisfactory shelter.

A good style is an A shaped building, eight feet wide, eight feet long and with each side of the roof eight feet in length. It takes a little over 225 feet of lumber to make such a house. There should be doors in both front and back, 2½ feet by 2½ feet, fastened at the top with leather hinges, so that they will swing both ways. The north door should be closed in winter. Such a house can be moved from field to field easily. It will shelter a sow and a litter of pigs. When a sow farrows in cold weather a lighted lantern hung inside from the roof will keep the air warm enough for the newborn pigs.—Farm Progress.

GARDENING DON'TS.

The average amateur gardener and often, too, the man who has had several years of gardening experience often make the mistake of trying to grow too many different things in a small space, the result being that not enough of any one variety is produced to amount to anything. In planning for a garden it is well to bear in mind a few points.

Go over the list of vegetables of which the family is especially fond, writing out the list on paper. Then eliminate such things as watermelons, cucumbers, cantaloupes, potatoes, sugar corn, the growing of which requires far more space than the average small garden affords.

Plan to keep the garden hard at work during the entire growing season, which lasts from the time the earliest crop can be planted in the spring until the season is late enough to bring danger of frost.

Do not be stingy with fertilizing elements, but use all the old stable manure obtainable. Too much cannot be used.

Don't try to begin operations too early, but wait until the frost is out of the ground.

Don't buy cheap seeds, because such seeds are dear at any price. Buy only the best. Results will more than pay for the difference in price.

A FINE RECORD

The results of the examinations during the past year show a magnificent record for Albert College. In the Departmental Examinations, 90 per cent. of those who wrote on Senior Matriculation and Faculty got their standing. In Normal Entrance and Junior Matriculation ten students were successful, three securing honours, and only one had spent two years in Matriculation class, the time allowed by the High Schools.

With one exception, all Piano and Vocal students were successful in passing Conservatory and College examinations, most securing honours and many first honours. All candidates in Art, whose work is examined by Prof. W. A. Sherwood, R.A., C.A., passed, many with honours. All students in the Expression Department were successful.

The Orangemen of Napanee, will hold their anniversary church service on Sunday, July 9th, at 2.30 p.m., in St. Mary Magdalene Church. The sermon will be preached by Bro. Coleman. A cordial invitation is extended to all members of the district to join with us. Members are requested to meet in the Blue Hall, over The Daily Co., offices, at 1.30. A procession will be formed, led by the Napanee band.

Miss Lucy Scott, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Scott, Napanee, was quietly married on Tuesday, to Lieut. Kenneth MacKinnon of Renfrew, who is home from the front on two month's furlough. Lieut. MacKinnon went to the front as a dresser in Clivenden Hospital and was later given a commission in the Royal Army Medical Corps, and has been serving for some months in a field hospital in France.

Remember the Big Farmers' Excursion to Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, C. N. R., Saturday, June 24th. Free lunch. Fare only $2.90. Trains will stop on flag signal at Newburgh, Camden East and Yarker. Tickets sold on train. See advt. on page 1.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on June 14th, at the home of Miss Alma Wood, Selby, when her sister, Lillie Grange, was united in marriage with Dorland McCutcheon. The marriage ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. E. B. Cooke, in the presence of the immediate relatives. The bride, unattended, presented a beautiful appearance gowned in navy blue gaberdine. Following the ceremony the young couple left by auto amid a shower of rice and confetti. Upon their return they will take up their residence in Selby, where the groom is interested with the Wood Brothers in the cheese business.

Maratha M. Wagar, widow of the late M. B. Wagar, died quite suddenly on Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Crabbe, Buffalo, N. Y. Mrs. Wagar was for a number of years a resident of Napanee and during the past few years spent the winter with her daughter in Buffalo, and the summer in Napanee. Mr. German Wagar, North Fredericksburgh, and Mrs. T. V. Anderson, South Napanee, are children of deceased. The remains were brought to Napanee and the funeral takes place this morning at 10 o'clock, from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Anderson, South Napanee.

We call attention to the London Lancet Investigation, which shows, the men at the front are evidently getting far more tobacco and cigarettes than they can possibly use and they are begging for something else. We can imagine what is happening from the state of matters in the hospitals here among the wounded men not with one packet, but a half-dozen packets of cigarettes beneath his pillow. Every visitor takes in cigarettes. The soldiers are supposed to live upon them, and they are pressed upon them when they would rather have something else, but cigarettes are the vogue, and so they pour into the hospital in an unending stream. Cigarettes are coming in a flood and our brave soldiers are crying out for deliverance!

admitted in the general hospital at Camieres on June 5, suffering from shell-shock and body confusions. Pte. Lee was born in the U. S. A., and raised at Odessa, Ont. His home has been in Toronto for several years, but he enlisted from Medicine Hat, Alberta, in the 3rd C.M.R., and went overseas last June in a draft to fill up gaps in a Canadian regiment that has been distinguishing itself at the front since the first of the war. Pte. Lee is the only son of Mrs. N. V. Lee, who is a widow. He is 24 years of age, and a barber by trade.

The By-Laws Defeated.

The By-Law to raise $10,000 for good roads was badly defeated on Monday. The vote for the by-law was 134, against 181. Majority against by-law, 59. The vote was a very light one and apparently the ratepayers were very indifferent about the matter. Though the by-law has appeared in the local papers and though a meeting was held on Friday evening last, it was astonishing how little the average ratepayer knew about the by-laws submitted. The rink by-law received a majority of the votes cast but not enough votes to secure the minimum number necessary to pass the by-law. The vote was for the by-law, 191; against, 172; majority for the by-law, 19.

Year 1816 Was Known as Summerless Year

The year 1816, that is, 100 years ago, says the Perth Expositor, was known as the "summerless summer." Snow commenced falling in the middle of June, by the middle of August it was one foot in depth, and from the first fall of snow in June until the following summer the earth remained under the covering of the wintry blanket. Absolutely nothing in the way of harvest was garnered. Everything in the way of crops rotted in the ground. What did they live on? Meat—meat and fish—there were no vegetables and there was no flour; it was venison and fish to-day, relieved by fish and flesh to-morrow, taken from slaughtered cattle. Hay had to be shipped from Ireland to save the starving cattle in Quebec, and it sold there at $45 per ton; flour sold at $17 per barrel in Quebec, and potatoes were one penny a pound. This year was called "the year eighteen, and frozen to death." The cause of the cold was believed to be sunspots, which were so large that for the first time in their history they could be seen without the aid of a telescope. It was also known as "poverty year." In New Hampshire hay sold at $180 a ton. The next spring the market price of corn was $2; a bushel of wheat, $2.50; rye, $2; oats, 90c; beans, $3; butter, 25c per lb. (It usually sold in those days at eight or ten cents.) Further particulars of the "summerless summer." The Expositor adds, are among the files of the Grenville Historical Society.

Address and Presentation

The Sunday School Hall of Trinity Church was well filled on Wednesday evening of this week, not only for the mid-week service, but chiefly to say farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Sellery, who leave on Monday next for Cobourg,
their new field of labor.

At the close of the Prayer Service
Mr. and Mrs. Sellery were called to the platform, when the accompanying address was read and the following presentations made: Mrs. Sellery was presented with a beautiful gun-metal Chatelaine bag, well lined with crisp $10.00 bills. Mr. Sellery received a handsome leather-lined club bag of the finest quality.

Mr. and Mrs. Sellery, in their reply, gave expression to their appreciation of the sentiments of the address and of the valuable and substantial gifts of which they have been the recipients.

THE ADDRESS.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Sellery:—As your work in Trinity Church is about completed, we take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation of your worth, along spiritual, intellectual and social lines.

During your four years' stay in our midst, we have observed with pleasure and great profit your earnest appeals for the personal salvation of your people for their improvement in the knowledge that leads to Eternal Life,
and for the general and specific advancement of the Church throughout.

As to intellectual resources, Mr.
Sellery, we have greatly admired your wonderful versatility displayed in the development of your subjects, to such an extent that as a preacher, you stand among the first.

We have felt strongly, the influence of both yourself and Mrs. Sellery, in the social life of our Church.

We wish you both the happiness,
the real and only happiness derived from a faithful life, included in the trinity of excellences—the highest development of the material, the intellectual and moral, through faith
in God and service of mankind.

We do not feel that we can allow
you to leave us without in some way,
more tangible than words of expressing our sincere appreciation of your worth, so we ask you to accept these gifts, as a slight mark of our esteem.

Our best wishes for your future success go with you in your new charge.

Signed on behalf of the congregation of Trinity Church.
